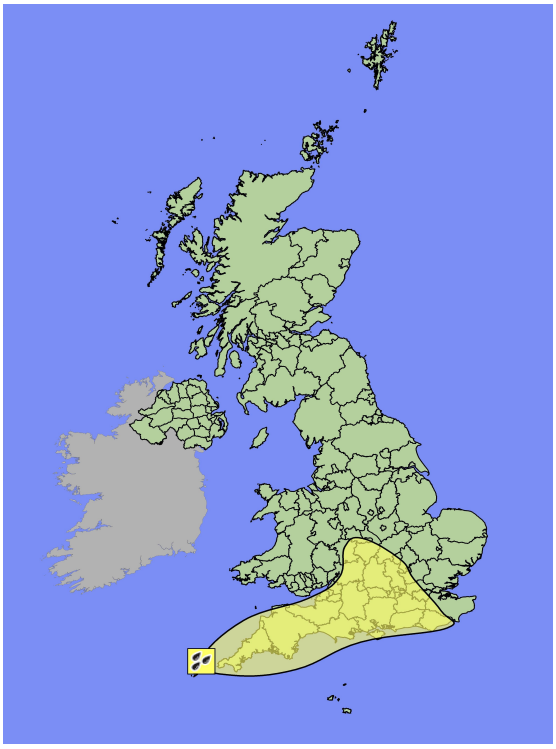
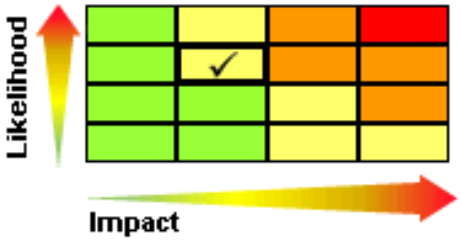
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another frontal system will move northeastwards across southern parts of England today. Convective elements embedded in the fronts have potential for up to 15 mm in an hour. Expect rain totals of 15 to 25 mm in places with perhaps as much as 40 mm in the wettest parts by the end of the day. The rain will gradually ease from the southwest.
This warning has been extended further east and now includes the London area.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Thu, 11th Oct 2012 until 20:00 on Thu, 11th Oct 2012

Further rain, heavy at times, will spread northeast across southern parts of England today. With the ground already saturated in many places the public should be aware that there is a risk of localised flooding and disruption to travel.
